

Learn To Learn

In today's rapidly changing business environment, more leaders are required than ever before.

But leaders with the right skill set who understand the intricacies of running a modern day organization effectively.

Learn to Lead is designed to provide world- class material based on the work of global thought leaders. Thought Leaders Training Institute (in conjunction with Paul Rigby) works with many of the world's most eminent Professors of business covering all the major business schools in the world. Our seminars and workshops in dozens of countries across the globe provide direct access to the very best thought leaders, communicators and practitioners on leadership theory and practice.

The program focuses on four distinct areas including individual, team, organisational and global leadership. It lays the groundwork for examining and developing your own personal leadership capabilities, whatever your level in an organisation.

The Learn To Lead program is highly interactive format that examines concepts and builds skills through teamwork, dialogue, problem solving, case studies, and role-playing. At times, you will also have the opportunity to meet and talk candidly with current business leaders.

Finally, the laboratory for learning extends beyond the walls of the classroom through experiences that combine lessons in leadership with compelling moments of history and personal challenge.

Learn to lead will enhance your leadership abilities or provide the foundation for leaders of the future.
